Cracking on with the Curriculum! - Paul Longden – Independent Consultant

Paul's session will look at ways to evaluate the impact of your curriculum to date. It will explore different ways that schools know the extent to which pupils are acquiring not only the key knowledge and skills they identified as part of their curricular intent but also the wider range of personal attributes and values they wish pupils to develop. The session will encourage leaders to reflect on the design of their curriculum and whether the key knowledge and skills are sequenced effectively to enable pupils to reach the identified curricular endpoints
